The COVID-19 Safe Prescribing of Oncological Treatments (COV-SPOT) Initiative – Letter of Invitation

The UK Coronavirus Cancer Project (UKCCP) is a clinician-led programme that was established in March 2020, at the start of the COVID-19 pandemic. The UKCCP aims to pioneer the use of real-world datasets to safeguard, monitor and protect cancer patients throughout the COVID-19 pandemic. We have successfully delivered several projects that have been published in peer reviewed journals. Details of the programme and our achievements to date can be found on our website at:

<https://ukcovidcancerprogramme.org/>.

We would like to invite your trust to take part in the next stage of the UKCCP programme: The COVID-19 Safe Prescribing of Oncological Treatments (COV-SPOT) initiative. COV-SPOT will aim to provide evidence around decision making for cancer patients who are receiving treatment and have recently tested positive for COVID-19. The current lack of evidence limits our ability to make treatment decisions in such patients and may lead to variation and inequalities in care across the UK.

To register an expression of interest for taking part in COV-SPOT, please complete the form found at:

With best wishes,

The UKCCP Team
